form with a blanket, preferably Indian style, around their shoulders, and wear the Arrow Band. All should help preserve the solemnity of the occasion.

It is of the utmost importance that the members of the Honors Team have their speaking parts thoroughly memorized, and their movements carefully rehearsed. The Ordeal Ceremonial is the new member's first real knowledge of the meaning of the Arrow. He should receive a life long fine impression that will be a constant inspiration to him to actively participate and grow in the service of the Order. Every member who has ever been fortunate enough to attend a National Lodge meeting knows what can be done to make this ideal real.

THE PLACE OF THE PRE-ORDEAL CEREMONIAL

A secluded place, used for no other purpose, to the north of the camp, if possible, and also by the edge of water, if available, should be chosen. If no natural creek, or river, or lake is available, a spring may be used, or simulated by a container of water buried in the surface of the ground.

The Pre-Ordeal Ceremonial should be given after dark, but not so late as to encroach upon the proper time for sleep. The candidates should be assigned, alone or by pairs, to somewhat separated safe places to camp in silence for the night.

THE ORDEAL

A practical plan for the Ordeal follows:

6:30 A. M. Awaken the candidates, afford opportunity for bathing and packing of their belongings.

7:30 A. M. Breakfast consisting of one egg sandwich and one cup of cocoa. As part of the testing of the candidate's camping ability they each may be required to prepare their own cocoa, using the cooking equipment they have brought for the Ordeal.

 and to cook their egg without using any utensil. If preferred, the cocoa may be prepared by members assisting the Honors Master and served to the candidates. The cup of cocoa should be a large serving, and substitution should be allowed for the egg in the case of mishaps or allergy. The Honors Master should see to it that each candidate has sufficient food at both breakfast and lunch to safely carry him through the work of the morning and afternoon, but not so much as to prevent his properly meeting the test of eating but little.

Allow time after breakfast for cleaning up and a short rest period.

9:00 A. M. Work of service to others. The candidates undertake carefully selected, but not too laborious, camp projects -- improvements of camp, building or repairs to ceremonial grounds, care of other property assigned to the Lodge, etc. The work may be performed by all the candidates together on one project, or the group may be split among several projects, depending on the number of candidates and the type of projects selected. The projects must be of a worthwhile nature so that the candidates will have a feeling of inner satisfaction and accomplishment in their work. This work should not be a part of the ordinary camp chores -- nor distasteful work. Neither should it be work ordinarily undertaken by your camp custodians.

11:30 A. M. Clean up, followed as soon as possible by the first discussion period. Permission should be given to the candidates to ask questions of the Honors Master, and to speak sufficiently to learn each other's names. Return to the silence, and have each candidate carve some symbolic emblem such as the totem of the Lodge, Arrow, etc., for exchange between candidates as mementoes of their common experience.

 wich and one large cup of milk. See comments as to allowing a safe quantity of food under "breakfast" above. Allow short rest period after lunch.

2:00 P. M. Continuation of work of service to others started in the morning. Some, or all, the candidates may have to be excused to finish work on the advancement program, as their camp period is nearly over.

4:30 P. M. Clean up, followed as soon as possible by second discussion period. Permission is again given candidates to break the silence for the purpose of partaking in the discussion. This is one of the most valuable parts of the Ordeal and should be conducted by the Scout Executive, Camp Director, or their specially selected deputy. It affords a splendid opportunity for character building guidance and a keener appreciation of what is happening to the Scouts in camp.

This discussion may cover the Pre-Ordeal Ceremonial and the Ordeal up to this time, drawing from the candidates their interpretations of the reasons why the various items have been included in the Ritual and the Ordeal. Care should be exercised to draw from them the decision they made at the Pre-Ordeal Ceremonial, and to see that they understand the symbolism of the program up to this time.

The discussion should be concluded by the Honors Master again calling for the silence, and announcing that the candidates will be permitted to have a full evening meal, and will be dismissed until the time of the Ordeal Honor Ritual which will complete their induction into membership. They should be reminded that what has occurred to them is of no concern to any one else, and given permission to speak, but as little as possible, during the evening meal. Candidates should rest in preparation for the Ceremonial.

COMPLIANCE WITH THE ORDEAL

When the election of candidates, the Pre-Ordeal Ceremonial, and the Ordeal up to this time have been conducted on a Scoutlike and intelligent basis, there is no reason why all candidates should not have fully met all the tests of the Ordeal. Once in a thousand cases there may be such a flagrant violation of the spirit of the Ordeal as would suggest the unworthiness of a candidate. In a few such exceptional cases which have occurred the candidate himself, without prompting, usually withdrew, realizing his own shortcoming.

The Honors Master should, prior to the start of the completion Ritual, report such flagrant violations to the Scout Executive, or Camp Director, who may discuss the matter privately with the candidate involved. The members of the Lodge have no vote as to the acceptance of candidates properly elected by their fellow campers.

THE CEREMONIAL GROUNDS

The place of the completion Ritual is the Ceremonial Grounds prepared as shown in the diagram "Ordeal Honor Ritual Pamphlet". It should preferably be in a distinctly separate setting reserved for the purpose. Local Lodges have made their Ceremonial Grounds places of beauty not only through the work of the Ordeal candidates, but by long and continual additional volunteer service by the members.

THE ORDEAL HONOR RITUAL

The completion Ritual should be given in the dark, sufficiently early to permit a reasonable hour of retirement for the candidates who have been through a very severe mental and physical test. See again the notes above under "The Rituals and the Honors Team".

FOLLOWING THE RITUAL

Many Lodges follow the practice of having all members, both old and new, reassemble in another place immediately after the Ordeal Ceremonial, to have a short social meeting, with light refreshments, so that all may become better acquainted. This should be pre-planned as a period of comparatively quiet fellowship, so as to avoid a let down after the beauty and impressiveness of the ceremonial.

Either immediately or the next morning the Officers of the Lodge, or their deputies appointed for this purpose, should secure from the new members their correct names, addresses, etc., for the Lodge records, collect their dues, and present them with their Ordeal Honor Insignia, as may be covered by Local Lodge regulations. This affords an additional opportunity to further explain the Ordeal Ceremony and the Arrow program, and to answer any questions in the minds of the new members.

CONCLUSION

Once again this message from your National Chief has had the unanimous approval of all members of your National Executive Committee, and is thus an official statement of the policies of the National Lodge.

Suggestions for future camp fire chats will be appreciated. Thank you, and may you all continue

Firm bound in brotherhood,
H. LLOYD NELSON
National Chief

cedures in carrying out the rituals and business of the Order.

3. Create opportunities for Lodges of the Area to gather together for "Fellowship" meetings, for the purpose of comradeship and interchange of suggestions.

4. Handle inquiries about the creation of new Lodges and assist in arrangements for new Lodge installations.

Fellowship meetings (item 3) are particularly important NOW! Those of us who have participated either directly or through Lodge representatives in the National Lodge meetings miss the inspiration and information that made those meetings so popular.

War time travel makes large gatherings impracticable but meetings of Lodge officers within Areas are still possible. Why not write to your Area Leader now, suggesting a time and place for such a meeting for your Area. The enthusiasm created will carry over into your camping season and help make Order activities the beautiful and interesting events they should be.

Yes, your Area Leader is at your service, but as always, you can help him render better service through your own spirit of cooperativeness.
